With aerial bombs, a torchlight parade four blocks long, and an enthusiastic rally in the Memorial hall attended by about 1,300 persons, Pickaway county Democrats brought their pre-election campaign to a whirlwind finish Friday night.

The celebration was one of the largest political events ever held in Circleville. Hundreds from all sections of Pickaway county took part in the parade. The parade

DARBY TO SEEK BIDS NOV. 21 FOR SCHOOL ADDITION

Bids will be opened by the Darby township Board of Education at noon, Nov. 21, for the construction of the addition to the school building at Darby.

The addition will cost approximately $54,750. The board will issue $30,000 worth of bonds, approved by the voters at the last election, and a grant of $24,750 has been made by WPA.

This addition will be used for high school purposes. It will contain four classrooms, a library, combined auditorium and gymnasium seating about 600, manual training and home economics rooms, locker and shower rooms, office, a study hall seating 75, and a heating plant. One room will be used as a classroom and science laboratory combined.

The building will match the present school in architecture.

ELECTION BOARD GIVES SUPPLIES TO 40 PRECINCTS

Members of the Board of Elections were busy at the courthouse Saturday packing precinct supplies for the election Tuesday. The supplies were distributed Saturday afternoon to 40 precinct judges.

For the first time the board is making arrangements to keep a running tabulation of the vote. This tabulation will be kept separately from the official tabulation and returns can be announced at various times during the night.

Although the election has fewer candidates listed than at the primary officials believe the returns will be late in arriving because of the huge vote anticipated. They predicted returns would start arriving about 9 p. m.

The estate of Frank Mason is valued at $16,880 in an inventory on file in probate court. Real estate is valued at $16,800 and personal goods at $80. Appraisers were Fred R. Nicholas, A. L. Wilder and Julius Helwagen.

Will She Become Queen?

Princess Elizabeth—If her father becomes king she will be next in succession.

IF KING EDWARD VIII of Great Britain should abdicate, discussed as an eventuality—though remote—in case he marries Mrs. Ernest (Wally) Simpson, then Princess Elizabeth, 10-year-old daughter of the Duke of York, would be second from the British throne. Princess "Lilibeth" is the eldest child of the Duke of York, who would succeed King Edward. His title would be King Albert I. Princess Elizabeth, who some day may be Queen Elizabeth, is shown in a recent portrait and astride her horse.

All Hospitals Filled as Planes Harass Madrid

MADRID, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Nationalist and Loyalist air fleets dropped a deadly hail of bombs on the beautiful cities of their country today in a savage bid for quick victory in the civil war.

Loyalist fleets bombed the nationalist airports at Talavera De La Reina, Salamanca and Seville, in retaliation for yesterday's terrible bombardment of Madrid, and the nationalists bombed Malaga, on the south coast, concentrating on the water front hoping to hit foreign ships suspected of bringing arms.

50 KNOWN DEAD AS CYCLONE HITS WIDE INDIA AREA

MADRAS, India, Oct. 31.—(UP)—

Approximately 50 persons were killed, while 15,000 were made homeless, by the cyclone which swept over a 200-mile area in the vicinity of Chirala, reports from the devastated area today disclosed.

A tidal wave accompanied the cyclone at Masulipatam, inundating the city.

Damage was estimated at 75,000 pounds (approximately $375,000). The storm area lay to the north of Madras.

OHIO CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH IN MATCH FIRE

ATHENS, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Five year old Phil Gamwell and Patty Ruth Bulloch, 7, a second cousin, were burned to death late yesterday when an outbuilding at Glaston in which they were playing caught fire.

Volunteer firemen said the children apparently were playing with matches and had locked themselves. They were burned beyond recognition.

SCHOOLS TO REOPEN

MARYSVILLE, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Public schools here, closed for two weeks because of an infantile paralysis scare, will reopen Monday. No new cases have developed in the last two weeks.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 31.—(UP)—A sheriff's deputy will be sent from Laclede county, Missouri, to the state of Montana, where he will take custody of John DeBerry, charged with stealing $5 cents.

FOOD SHORTAGE MENACES WEST SEABOARD AREA

San Francisco's Mayor Declares State of Emergency

WAREHOUSEMEN QUIT
Hawaiian and Alaskan Cities Endangered

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—(UP)—The maritime strike spread to Baltimore today as 700 members of the International Seamen's Union voted to quit nine ships moored in the harbor here.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—(UP)—An ever-widening strike wave struck a dangerous blow at the food supplies of Pacific Coast ports of Hawaii and Alaska today. A maritime strike affecting 4,000 miles of coastline became complicated by a walkout of warehousemen in the vital San Francisco market.

Wholesale staples were tied up in the city. Mayor Angelo Rossi declared a state of emergency. Honolulu, Hilo, Juneau, Fairbanks, Nome and other Hawaiian and Alaskan cities, dependent on Pacific shipping for staple groceries, feared acute shortages as approximately 200 vessels cancelled sailing orders.

Pantries Stocked
San Francisco housewives, heeding strike rumors for many weeks, have stocked their pantries with emergency provisions and retail grocers reported they had enough supplies on their shelves to last several days. But it was feared a protracted strike might seriously curtail distribution of essential foods.

Following an exchange of notes between unions and employers and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, in which no immediate peace plans were formulated, the San Francisco Central Labor Council which ruled San Francisco for four days during its 1934 general strike met and mapped strike strategy.

Pacific coast water-borne commerce was at a standstill. The ports of San Francisco, Seattle, San Pedro, San Diego, Juneau, Vancouver, Honolulu and others were deserted except for knots of pickets stationed in front of piers and extra details of special policemen.

Madame Perkins sought a quick solution of the marine strike, urging the shipowners and unions to "get together" at once and reach a settlement on the contract disputes which precipitated a walkout of 35,000 members of seven unions.

Hospitals were crowded with men, women and children mangled in the nationalist bombardment of Madrid and Getafe.

Deaths in the Madrid raid were listed this morning at 34, with 200 wounded. In the Getafe raid, unofficial estimates were that 70 persons died.

The damage to Madrid as the nerve center of the loyalist cause was negligible. Most of the people killed were civilians, many were women and children.

But reports to the defense services insisted that in the loyalist raids, centered entirely on nationalist airports, much damage was done. It was asserted that in the raid on Talavera, the second in 48 hours, between 15 and 20 nationalist planes were wrecked, and that at Salamanca most of a fleet of 10 three-motored bombers were destroyed.

MISSOURI-MONTANA TRIP TO CATCH 85-CENT THIEF

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 31.—(UP)—A sheriff's deputy will be sent from Laclede county, Missouri, to the state of Montana, where he will take custody of John DeBerry, charged with stealing $5 cents.

Two Halloween parties will be conducted Saturday night by the WPA recreation department. One party will be held in the second floor of The Herald building. The other, for colored children, will be held in the St. Paul A. M. E. church. Both start at 7 p. m. Leaders report about 30 colored children have been taking advantage of the recreation center in the church.

OHIO DRIVERS' LAW EFFECTIVE MONDAY, NOV. 2

COLUMBUS, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Ohio's recently enacted drivers' license law will be effective Monday at the expiration of a 30-day extension period of grace from the original date of Oct. 1.

The state highway patrol and police officials of all cities have been instructed to demand of all motorists that they hold such driving permits.

The examination of temporary driving permit holders will begin in all cities and counties Monday.

A supply of pamphlets listing possible questions to be asked applicants requiring examinations for drivers' license have been left at the police department for distribution.

The first examination will be held the first and third Tuesday of each month. The change in the first examination date was caused by the election.

State highway patrolmen and city police will cooperate in conducting the tests. The mayor's office in the front of the city building will be used by the officers. The office will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

ST. PAUL CHURCH FILLED AS G. O. P. RALLIES FRIDAY

St. Paul's A. M. E. church was filled to capacity Friday night for a Republican rally.

Speakers were Robert Barcus, colored attorney of Columbus, and Fred W. Postle, candidate for state senate. A musical program was furnished by a Harmony group of Columbus. Refreshments were served after the meeting. Marion Sensenbrenner was chairman of the celebration.

Republicans will rally in the pavilion at Williamsport, Saturday night, with Stanley Stewart of the Ohio Industrial Commission as the principal speaker.

IT'S HALLOWEEN, SO PREPARE FOR MANY SURPRISES

Mickey "mice," witches, ghosts and scores of other characters behind faces done in oil will be riding around together in automobiles and parading Circleville's downtown streets Saturday night.

It's Halloween, the night when things move on the porch or in the yard start moving. It's a night to expect the unexpected.

There will be no civic celebration. Officials believed a parade would be difficult to handle in the downtown traffic and would follow too closely after the Pumpkin Show pageants.

They expect to make a mardi gras pageant a part of the Armistice day celebration sponsored by the American Legion.

A majority of the casualties were Dutch, and included a fireman and a policeman who entered the ship with a rescue party after the first explosion.

The blasts occurred while the ship was moored at Schiedam, near here.

'Stork Derby' Judge

JUSTICE MIDDLETON of the Ontario supreme court has been appointed to decide on the validity of the "Stork" clause in the will of Charles Vance Millar. Justice Middleton also will decide which of the contending Toronto mothers is to receive the bequest of $775,000 as directed by Millar's will. The "Stork Derby" ends Oct. 31. Hearings will start on Nov. 6.

FANTASTIC BABY DERBY REACHES CLOSE SATURDAY

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Charles Vance Millar's 10-year $750,000 baby derby came to a smashing finish today, in a muddled state as that "sublime joker" have wished.

With the winner almost impossible to pick, law suits pending, relatives contesting the Millar will in which he left his fortune to Toronto's most prolific mother, the Ontario government prepared to intervene in what Millar's friends call "the greatest practical joke" of that eccentric lawyer's career.

Six women with nine children each apparently were tied in their claims to the fortune, but three, expected new babies momentarily.

Premier N. E. Hepburn was ready with legislation designed to keep the lawyers, who plan a series of legal actions on behalf of various contestants, from getting most of the money.

Dr. Dafoe Disgusted

Dr. Roy Allen Dafoe, who ushered the Dionne quintuplets into the world, was in town but he refused to take the case of any of the mothers expecting last-minute babies. He said he considered "this thing started by the late Mr. Millar is a little more than slightly disgusting."

Stories of the lawyer who dropped dead at 4:30 p. m. on Oct. 31, 1926, were on everyone's lips. One close friend of the baby derby's sponsor, summed him up like this: "They've tried to make Charley out to be a crack-pot and a malevolent demon. But he was only a sublime joker. All his life he was thinking up practical jokes. This is his masterpiece. I read somewhere that Charley made his peculiar will because he loved children and revered motherhood. Get that out of your mind. He hated women."

"We used to sit together for hours in the old days. Charley, as a lawyer, handled many wills. He'd often say: 'Dead men always come back to plague us.' Nobody ever heard of Millar outside of Toronto before he died. But 10 years after his death, everybody from here to Shanghai knows all about him and that cuckoo will."

President Continues to Hit "Economic Royalists"

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(UP)—The $10,000,000 presidential campaign of 1936 winds up today on platforms in New York and St. Louis where candidates Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alf M. Landon make final nation-wide appeals for election day support.

Well more than 42,000,000 voters will express their preference on election day, next Tuesday. If the law of averages governs, approximately 1,000,000 of those votes will be thrown out by election officials because they are improperly marked or otherwise invalid.

From coast to coast come reports of record-breaking registrations of new voters and men and women who have not for many years taken the trouble to qualify themselves.

Both Need Support

Gov. Landon is hurrying westward after an invasion of New York City, which President Roosevelt must carry by a large margin if he is to win this state and its 47 electoral votes. The president is back in his town house here after a final swing through mid-Atlantic states where the Kansan must win if he is to go to the White House next January.

Mid-way between the coasts, former President Herbert C. Hoover last night fired his parting shot at Mr. Roosevelt from a Denver, Colo. platform. Gov. Alfred E. Smith tonight will toss his brown derby in the air at Albany, N. Y., where he served four terms as Democratic governor before he was nominated for president in 1923. Smith will plead with Democrats to vote for Gov. Landon.

Twenty-four hours after Gov. Landon appeared here in Madison Square Garden before a boisterously enthusiastic crowd, Mr. Roosevelt began returning the Rooseveltian fire from the Academy of Music across the river, in Brooklyn. The president tonight will follow Gov. Landon to the garden platform in what Democrats promise will be the stand-out political demonstration of this campaign.

The candidates are in the stretch and the whips are going. Father Charles E. Coughlin, bitter-spoken Detroit priest, came into New York in the campaign wind-up but told questioners he would concede, now, that Union Party presidential candidate William Lemke has no chance.

NEW YORK STILL TWICE AS LARGE AS NEAREST CITY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(UP)—New York with a population of 7,364,620 persons on July 1, a gain of 434,170 over 1930, still is twice as big as Chicago and is the queen of the nation's cities on the basis of an estimate prepared today at the census bureau.

Compiling a list of the nation's 40 largest cities on the basis of estimates made from a mathematical formula, the bureau's figures showed that Chicago with 3,599,997 persons, a gain of 223,550 persons over 1930, easily took second place. London still is easily the biggest city in the world, however, with 8,202,215.

No changes occurred during the period in the positions of the first twelve cities in ranking although all showed increases for the period. Occupants of the first twelve positions were New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, St. Louis, Baltimore, Boston, Pittsburgh, San Francisco and Milwaukee.

The estimate was made shortly after the census bureau disclosed the nation's population on July 1, as 128,429,000.

Wardrobe for 'Pinocchio' Largest Used by Company

When "Pinocchio" of the long nose brings his adventurers to the Cliftona theatre next Wednesday, the wardrobe which accompanies him will be one of the largest sent out by the Clare Tree Major company. The show is being sponsored by the Child Conservation league.

Marian DePew, who has been head of the costume department for ahead of the season to prepare things for the exacting marionette when he decides to go on his travels.

Pinocchio, himself, has only two outfits, the wall paper suit which his father makes for him, and the real boy's clothes in which he finds himself when he has earned the right to be a boy, and the Blue Fairy has brought about the magic change. But the many people whom he meets on his restless wanderings need a great deal of costuming indeed. The Blue Fairy with the azure hair is the loveliest, but there are also Harlequin and Pierette, the huge carabineer, the even bigger Fire Eater, Gippetto, Lampwick, the circus trainer, the driver for the Land of Toys, and a great many people besides.

Animals Different To Miss DePew, these costumes are an everyday affair, but the animals with which Pinocchio falls in are a different matter. All summer, in the little private studio she calls "Peter Pan" because it is set among the trees high on a cliff above the Atlantic Ocean, Miss DePew works with Pinocchio's animal friends. Medora, the Blue Fairy's poodle footman, come to town with a brand new head, his long white ears flapping and a soucy blue velvet tricorn proudly perched on his crown. The Cat, arrived after a session in "Peter Pan" with a very smug expression; the Fox had evidently not benefited in mood, though he had in profile, by the change. The two Black Rabbits were friendly little persons to work on; but the doctors—they were just as difficult as doctors could be. A Crow, an Owl and a Cricket—they were the doctors.

Paint, glue, paper mache paste—they are nasty, sticky unpleasantly smelly things to fill "Peter Pan" with during the long, warm summer months, with the garden outside a riot of bright, fragrant flowers, and the fresh sea breezes flowing in from the sparkling ocean.

Miss DePew joined the Clare Tree company intending only to take a year's vacation from a promising career in science. She found the work so fascinating that she has never gone back to science. She has designed, and in great part executed, all the thousands of costumes in the wardrobe of the Clare Tree Major company.

ASSEMBLY SEES POLITICAL SHOW

Banners flying high, songs of the political parties sounding throughout the auditorium, party flowers carried by supporters of the parties, political speeches being given by speakers of each party, and symbols of the parties worn by participants was a result of a huge political rally which was presented in an assembly Thursday by members of the eighth grade.

The Democrat, Republican and Union parties were represented with the classes having been divided into three parts.

The rally climaxed the study of the political situation by the eighth grade history classes for the past several weeks. The three classes have worked out the party song, glower, symbol, platform, banners, and biographies of the candidates on the Republican, and Union parties.

The program has been directed and prepared by Mr. Lea.

ELECTION TO BE HELD ON NOV. 3

All members of the student body and faculty of Circleville High school will be given an opportunity to cast their votes for president of the United States and governor of Ohio November 3, in the school election conducted by the Social Civics classes.

The Civics classes have chosen a committee consisting of twelve members to be in charge of the election. Laddie Goeller has been selected as chairman of the group. The election will be held in the gym next Tuesday morning.

A sub committee composed of Betty Bowsher, Laddie Goeller, and Dave Jackson are to secure the ballots.

Jim Davis, Atwell Lindsey, and Dick Mader will construct the voting booths and ballot boxes.

Those in charge of registration are Eleanor Driesbach, Mary McGinnis, and Ruth Robinson. John Kuhn, Betty Nickerson, and Helen Sayre form the committee in charge of the counting of the votes.

In the straw vote conducted by the Civics classes two weeks ago Roosevelt and Davey were victorious over their Republican opponents. However student representatives of both major political parties have been conducting an intense campaign since the straw vote occurred which may influence the election.

The Civics classes will use the result of the election as the basis of class discussions. The pupils will analyze the school election and compare it with the national and state elections and with the straw vote.

VARIETY GROUP IN FIRST MEET

The Variety Group No. One, a unit of the Senior Girl Reserves, held its first meeting of the year, Wednesday evening. Marjorie Leach was hostess, assisted by the president, Rosemary Metzger.

After discussion, the club decided to keep its original name of Variety Group No. 1. The slogan, "Courage, Honesty and Success" was chosen.

A committee composed of Marjorie Leach, Rosemary Neuding and Dorothy Walters was appointed by the president, to choose a suitable style of pin for the club, a clever combination of "A", "V", "G" and Roman Numeral I. The pins are to be done in the club colors, jade and silver.

Games and refreshments followed the business meeting. The next meeting will be held at the home of Dorothy Walters in two weeks.

The Junior Girl Reserves are aiding the League by selling tickets.

RAINBOW TRAIL FROM HUNGARY TO HOLLYWOOD

NEW YORK (UP)—The 13th child of a Hungarian farmer has added another success story to the many centering around the movies. She told it upon arriving from Europe before continuing her journey to Hollywood.

Franziska Gaal is the girl, known abroad for her screen and stage work. And as a linguist she is something of a prodigy. She says that she has been studying English less than one month. Over that period, however, she developed a vocabulary of sufficient scope to carry her through a New York interview.

Miss Gaal's appearance in America is due to Adolph Zukor of Paramount Pictures. But her rise came about through her own determination. Her father, said Miss Gaal, disapproved when she announced she wanted to begin a stage career. That caused her to practice a mild deception. After that her family thought she was going to school, when as a matter of fact, she was making her first entrance over the threshold of a Hungarian stage door.

Law, Love and Temperance

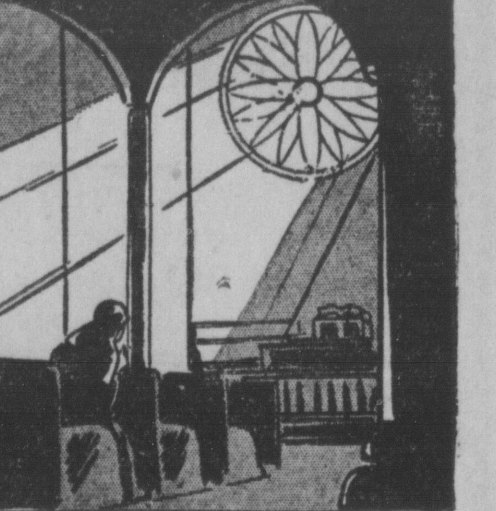

In his epistle to the Romans Paul urged them to submit to the government under which they were living, saying, "Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Our duty to God and our duty to the state need not conflict with one another. "The powers that be are ordained of God." Government "is a minister of God to thee for good."

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

"Let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light. . . . Let us walk not in revelling, and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and jealousy." (GOLDEN TEXT—Romans 14:21.)

Romans 14:21—"It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth."

Law, Love and Temperance

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Sunday School Lesson on above topic for Nov. 1 is Romans 13:1-14, the Golden Text being Rom. 14-21, "It is good not to eat flesh, nor drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth.")

IN HIS "Essay on Man" Pope says, "Order is Heaven's first law." On every hand we have evidence that we live in a universe of law and order. The God who has subjected the universe to the discipline of law, in no sense exempts man from this discipline of orderly government under law.

Submission to Government

The New Testament has much to say about a Christian's duties to his government: "Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers: for there is no power but to God: and the powers that be are ordained of God: He that resisteth the power, withstandeth the ordinance of God: and they that withstand shall receive to themselves judgment." Government is God's method of securing social order and welfare. "It is a minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for it beareth not the sword in vain. . . . Wherefore ye must needs be in subjection, not only because of the wrath, but for conscience sake." This reference to conscience indicates both the spirit and the limit is reached when government requires of its citizen that which transgresses Christian conscience. Here the Christian follows good precedent in saying, "We must obey God rather than men."

Support of Government

The government owes no man a living. It owes him only the opportunity of making a living. As citizens of the government we may not expect to enjoy the benefits of government without willingness to support that government in proportion to our ability. "For this cause ye pay tribute also; Render to all their dues; tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom." Honesty in payment of one's taxes justly due the government, honesty in accord with one's oaths and affidavits; fidelity to one's oath of office, all these are no less Christian duties than they are patriotic duties.

The Law of Love

Certainly a Christian will try to pay his debts: "Owe no man anything, save to love one another," which means that there are some debts we can pay off, and others which must always remain unpaid obligations. We must keep on loving, for debts of love are never discharged. We shall always owe love. Love must motivate us if we are ever to keep either the laws of God or of the state. Keeping the law of love, we can not break any law. True love is the effective preventive of adultery, murder, theft, covetousness and every other violation of the laws of God or of the state. "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; love therefore is the fulfillment of the law."

The Enabling Inspiration

The enabling inspiration for all this is a conviction of the coming

Kingdom of Christ for which we are preparing. "The night is far spent, and the day is at hand; let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light." Let us cast off "revelling and drunkenness, chambering and wantonness, strife and jealousy" and "put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to fulfill the lusts thereof."

PERSEVERANCE FEATURES RISE OF GIRL RIDER

NEW YORK (UP)—For the past two months Vera Jean Steele, 13, of Springfield, Mass., has traveled 500 miles a week by motor car and rode in three horse shows so she could qualify for competition at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden, Nov. 4-10.

Vera will be one of 55 competitors for the Macley Trophy awarded to the person under 17 who exhibits the best horsemanship over eight jumps. With possession of the trophy donated by Alfred B. Macley, through the A.S.P.C.A., goes also recognition as the nation's outstanding child rider of the year.

Earlier this year Miss Steele qualified for the companion event at the Garden, the "Good Hands" class, in which the youngsters are judged for their ability in handling saddle horses. But she wanted to jump, too.

For practice and instruction in jumping Vera traveled 250 miles from her home town to Rye, N. Y., and back twice weekly to be coached by Frank Carroll, who specializes in equestrian instruction for children.

CAKES, SAUSAGE, PUMPKIN PIE

THESE are days when thoughts turn naturally to important things of life, such as sausage and wheat cakes and pumpkin pie. Incidentally, of course, there is the election, which is vital in a remote sort of way, but the others are matters of more intimate interest. When the mercury descends to its lower levels, as it does occasionally on these bright Autumn mornings, the appealing spectacle of a stack of golden brown cakes and a generous link of sausage arises pleasantly in the mind's eye.

There may be better ways of starting the day than by attacking and conquering such a gastronomic citadel but they do not present themselves for consideration at the moment. As for pumpkin pie, one whose texture is smooth and rich, with just the proportion and kinds of spices and perfect crust—among all of the attractions of a delightful season which combines most of the beauties of nature, there is none more appealing than this.

THE NIGHTS OF SPIRITS

ARE you still youthful enough to get a bit of a kick out of Halloween doings? Or are you aged enough so it seems all nonsense, and you feel that youth should quit such senseless foolishness, and go home and study its next day's school lesson?

While such observances are only a kid frolic today, it was not so many years ago that the young folks took them partly seriously. As a night when the souls of the departed were supposed to be let loose from the realm of shades, witches and devils were also supposed to be doing an active business. And the idea was inherited from innumerable centuries back, that through commerce with these delegations from the unseen world, you could learn the future.

So the young folks would place nuts in pairs on a hot grate, and name them for certain lovers. If the nuts roasted nicely, that meant true love. If one popped, that was unfaithfulness. If they burned together, that told of marriage. But our sophisticated young folks would say today that the only true thing about that sign is that all lovers are nertz.

The bad boy has always revelled in Halloween. He carried off folks' gates or rattled their windows, and felt that his doings could be attributed to the spirits.

The younger kids at their pranks are a pretty enough sight. Let them dress up in their romantic costumes and flourish their jack-o-lanterns to their heart's content. If you pretend to be terribly scared when you see their ghostly appearance, that elates them supremely.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Not long ago I had occasion to refer to a renewal of talk in favor of an eleventh cabinet department; we have 10 now, as compared with the five Uncle Sam started with.

My statement was to the effect that this suggestion was a development from the activities of a senate committee, created at the last session of congress, "to do a job," as the committee's chairman, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, expresses it, "of reorganization and simplification in government."

The addition of another department to the present list of 10 may or may not seem like "simplification."

Senator Byrd evidently thinks not, for he objects to my story.

"NEVER DISCUSSED"

He writes to me that it "is absolutely" without foundation.

"Such a matter has never even been discussed by the committee and our experts have made no recommendation whatever with respect to it. Our committee has never even discussed the creation of any department and I personally, unless there are reasons of which I am not cognizant, would be unalterably opposed to the creation of a new cabinet position."

The senator adds:
"I do not want to make a public statement denying the statement you have made and I thought you yourself would correct it."

OTHER MEMBERS DISCUSS IT

Frankly, I did not get my information from Senator Byrd. Senators have been only occasionally available in Washington during the presidential campaign. I have not seen Senator Byrd, the chairman of the committee, recently, but I have seen other members.

Some of them manifestly are not in entire agreement with the Virginia senator.

There probably have been no formal committee discussions of the desirability of setting up an eleventh cabinet department, but a few of the Virginia senator's associates assuredly have such an amplification of the executive branch of the government tentatively in mind.

The Virginian cannot but hear of it before his committee makes its final report. The members who favor an eleventh department may be in a minority, but at least there will be a minority on that side.

That is all I ever contended —

That a campaign for governmental condensation always leads into a campaign for governmental expansion, and that expansion wins in the end.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

ROOSEVELT'S LUCK HELD GOOD

WASHINGTON — There is something about the present political campaign not unlike a baseball season. One team has a great bunch of players, all the ballyhoo in the world, plenty of money to spend, but lacks that indefinable but absolutely essential "something" it takes to bring home the bacon.

Some people call it luck, some call it jinx, some call it teamwork.

Whatever it is, Roosevelt has it and Landon hasn't.

If there ever has been a luckier presidential candidate than Franklin Delano Roosevelt, old-timers who have been covering campaigns since before Bryan can't recall his name.

In 1932, Dame Fortune handed him the Depression and the tidal wave of resentment against Herbert Hoover, which would have swept almost any candidate into office.

This year, as if enamoured of his golden voice and captivating smile, Lady Luck again has given him all the breaks. When he appeared in Chicago it was warm and sunshiny. Landon's entry was made in a deluge of rain. In Detroit, Landon addressed a shivering audience huddled in one end of the ball park. To Roosevelt Dame Fortune gave a lovely Indian summer evening.

ROOSEVELT SILENCE

Landon has been pushed out in the open on foreign affairs, the tariff, farm aid, relief, and so on down the line.

Roosevelt has coasted along without putting himself on record on hardly anything. There isn't a person in the country (and some of the President's friends say this includes FDR himself) who can state with assurance what he will do regarding the Constitution, the Supreme Court, taxation, labor, agriculture, the NRA and industry.

Adroitly shunning details, he has declared that the viewpoint which guided him during the past four years will be continued in the next. And it is remarkable that the Republican master minds have failed so completely to nail this to the mast.

Here again is where luck has smiled on Franklin Roosevelt. He was able to get away with what he has, chiefly because of the deep cleavage within GOP ranks over basic policies. They themselves haven't known what they wanted.

LIBERALS VS. LIBERTY LEAGUE

One one side has been the little band of Kansas editors who first launched Landon, built him up to presidential stature, put him across at the Cleveland Convention. They are the soundest advisers Landon ever had. But they are definitely on the Left flank.

On the Right flank are the big moneyed boys, who jumped on the Landon bandwagon after he was built up in Cleveland. They are the boys who furnish the jack—the stuff which makes election wheels go round. They are the J. P. Morgans, the Rockefellers, the duPonts, the Liberty Leaguers. They are essential, and they know it. So they have their say.

But their say has contributed materially to the prospective Roosevelt landslide.

FLOWERS AT HER FEET

CHAPTER 35

"IT'S ALL RIGHT, honey," Bill said, "I'm here."

Alix withdrew from his arms. Not, however, before she had felt their comforting strength as they sat in his car.

"I don't know what's the matter with me," she tried to say lightly. "I guess I'm just being emotional."

"You're just a lonesome little kid," he said. "This may be home to you but I guess it's hard getting used to us again."

"Maybe that's it," she answered and was glad when they reached Will Hartley's lodge.

Changing to a ski suit in the stuffy room, she thought there would be no more such weakness on her part. But driving home again alone with Bill, she found herself again in his embrace, his lips hard on hers.

"I'm sorry," he said when they were at the door of her house.

"I'm not," she said.

That wasn't the last time that Bill kissed her. And so they drifted into a closer companionship. She was—in the parlance of Bardsdale—"going with" Bill from that night on.

Sometimes they stayed at home and read. There were three picture houses in Bardsdale and three times a week they went to the movies. Bill and Alix were invited to all the bridge parties together. Alix went to Bill's house every Sunday night to supper.

Dorcas and Will Hartley were the other two unmarried young people on those parties. They didn't meet too often, however.

They made love—Alix and Bill. A casual kind of love-making. Alix was young, lovely and lonesome. Bill had something locked up in him to forget and with him, Alix, who had always been his "romantic lady". It was inevitable that what happened should have happened.

And it was inevitable that Mae Alexander's observation that "all the women in Bardsdale think Bill is the best catch in town" should change Bill in Alix's eyes. To her, he was still the friend and brother but she saw him as other women did. She saw his power, his personality and his good looks. She felt tenderness for him. But she did not love him.

There was no reason for her to force her feeling for Bill. They were both content with things as they were. Things would always be that way. There was no need to expect time to change anything. Time would go on forever and Alix Carey would live in this padded, cushioned world she had made for herself forevermore. A world where there was no sharp, sweet sensitiveness, no quickening pulse, no hills, no valleys. Nothing but a quiet sameness, where if there was no joy, there was no pain.

There was work and that was good.

So another April came. It found Alix Carey on this April day in overalls, wielding a paintbrush with vigor while Betsy Nathaniel and her admiring bridegroom-to-be looked on with delight.

"What we'll do here," Alix indicated the wainscoting in the low-ceilinged bedroom, "is to use a little of the more green in the blue to make a natural blend. Then if you decide to use the rose hooked rugs by way of a change from the yellow, you'll have the same values in the walls."

"I simply adore it, don't you, darling?" Betsy asked her beau.

"Say, it's the nuts! I thought you were crazy, Miss Carey, when you suggested a Cape Cod cottage just because Betsy's grandfather came from the Cape, but it's got anything around these parts beat a mile."

"Thanks," Alix wiped the paint from her hands. "It is rather like a doll house I think. You can build on to it, you know. That's the beautiful thing about this type of architecture. You can keep putting on wings and it still doesn't seem to change the proportions. How do you like the pine paneling?"

They liked the wide board pine paneling in "the master's room." They liked the many-paned windows, the hooked rugs, the small-patterned wallpaper, the Governor Winthrop desk and the brass ship candleholders. They liked everything about it.

"But how can you do it?" Betsy wanted to know sadly. "How can you design anything as heavenly as this and then walk off and leave it? I mean, doesn't it make you wish you were a bride and this were yours?"

Alix said something to the effect that one of the nice things about interior decorating was that you always had a new one to do and you couldn't want them all. And she was surprised to find that it might have been fun to be doing it for herself all the while knowing that a home without a man in it wasn't fun for any woman. And that a home with a man in it was the nearest to heaven any woman could find on earth!

She told Mae Alexander about it when she returned to the shop and laughed.

"What's so funny about it, Alix? Won't you be having one yourself some day?"

Alix dropped her yardstick.

"Why should I?" she asked.

Mae bent to pick up the yardstick.

"I wouldn't be surprised if you were to be getting married one of these days," she said, still with bent head.

"I would be surprised," Alix said firmly.

"Well, you don't need to be so set about it. Lots of girls do get married you know. Particularly when they've got a steady beau."

"Oh!" That was all Alix said.

But they were wrong, oh, they were wrong about that.

Mae didn't let the subject drop. "If you were to get married, Alix, you wouldn't give up this work, would you?" she asked sometime later.

"I haven't any intention of giving up this work or of getting married," Alix said. "Do you remember if we sent a bill this month to Mrs. Penny? I told her that we wouldn't bill her until May."

"I don't remember anything about it. Alix, you'd look lovely in white satin with a veil. Wouldn't you like to have that kind of a wedding?"

"Sure," Alix said as though she were humoring a very small child.

"I'd like to have a train a mile long, 20 bridesmaids wrapped up in cellophane and a chorus of angels. And doves. Oh, I must have doves flying around the belfry of the church."

"And a handsome bridegroom," Mae contributed.

"By all means, a handsome bridegroom. Now let me think, whom would you suggest?"

"Clark Gable," Mae said witheringly and was surprised that Alix should look at her as though a point were pressing into her side.

"John Sayre looks like Clark Gable," Kathleen had said to her long ago.

"Enough of that nonsense," she said sternly when she had caught her breath and shut out the picture that sprang into her memory. "I must rush this order out if I'm to catch the last mail."

She knew, she knew very well, that they all expected her to marry Bill Boyd. She wondered if Bill ever heard the things she did, the all-but questions that were put to her.

Betsy Nathaniel invited her, and Bill, to her wedding and tossed the traditional bouquet right into Alix's arms.

That started it.

Kay Fox came out blantly with the question at the wedding party:

"Alix, when are you and Bill going to get married?"

Alix smiled and Bill looked at her. Neither of them answered.

That night Bill said to her, "Alix, will you marry me?"

Alix looked up at him, at his broad shoulders, his strong, kind face bent gravely toward her. She saw a procession of good years before her.

She said, "If you want me to, Bill,"

How Physicians Ascertain How Stomach Acts

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"SO I AM GOING to be shot like a dog." This was the realization of Dr. H. J. Howard when he fell into the hands of Chinese bandits.

"My tongue began to swell and my mouth to get dry. This thirst rapidly became worse, until my tongue clove to the roof of my mouth, and I could scarcely get my breath. The thirst was choking me—I was in a terrible state of fear."

Then his courage came back. He thought: "I will die like a man," and his fear vanished.

"Instantly my thirst began to disappear. In less than a minute it was entirely gone, and by the time we had reached the gate I was perfectly calm and unafraid."

This evidence, gathered by a trained observer, shows that thirst is not always due to lack of water in the cells and tissues of the body, but may be caused by emotion. Certainly it was an extraordinary way to learn it. The ruling passion strong in death—the physiologist about to be shot, timing the length of his thirst period and the rapidity of its disappearance.

But we all know something of the influence of emotion in thirst—the amateur speechmaker who finds his mouth dry just as he is called upon for his remarks. Fear causes constriction of the blood vessels on the surface of the body, including the blood supply to the salivary glands. This lessens the flow of saliva, and hence the dryness of the mouth.

Ordinary thirst, however, not that experienced in an emotional state, is due to depletion of the water supply to the tissues. The sensation of thirst, however, is located in the mouth, just as hunger is located in the stomach region.

Why should thirst—the need of the cells for water—be indicated by that feeling of dryness in the mouth? In a person who is thirsty, if water is introduced into the body elsewhere than by the mouth—under the skin, or in a vein, let us say—the dryness of the mouth disappears. And if the sensation of the dry, thirsty mouth is assuaged by having a person take a mouthful of water, rinse it around, and then spit it out, so that the body cells get no replenishment, the sensation of dryness of the mouth still remains.

The explanation given by Dr. Walter B. Cannon, who has worked on these subjects for many years, is that the mouth is a region which is especially likely to become desiccated when the bodily reserves of water are reduced.

Across the back of the mouth air currents are constantly moving, drying it off. If the water reserve of the body is high these tissues are kept moistened from within by the blood stream. Also by the salivary glands, the secretion of which is generally from 90 to 97 per cent water. If the water supply of the tissues is lowered, the salivary glands cease to secrete, and the palate is not moistened from within, so the sensation of thirst occurs.

It seems simple, and yet a French physiologist, Magendie, about a hundred years ago said that thirst was a phenomenon so inexplicable that "it did not admit of any explanation."

Good, "Evening on the Farm" by Ada Kneese, "In the Land of Anywhere" by Mary Beck were enjoyed. These were followed by another song by the girls and a camp talk by Margaret Leist. A color drill by twelve of the girls was an outstanding feature of the program.

Music by Fairy Richards, preceded a style revue of the clothing made by the girls themselves. They then sang "The End of a Lollipop" and "Ohio's Sons and Daughters." Miss Mary Shortridge, club leader, gave an interesting talk on the club work.

F. K. Blair, county agent, introduced the boys. Talks "Being a Booster" by Marvin Marshall, "Seeding and Training Beef Calf for Shows" by Gail List; "Club Activities" by Harold Marshall, "Seeding and Handling a Market Pig" by Philip Reichelderfer, "Seeding and Producing Breeding Gelts" by John D. Leist were given. Rewards were presented for their year's work and the club received the county banner as an added honor.

Following the program lunch was served by the committee whose names begin with R and S, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Marvin Steeley.

FORDHAM RAMS HOPE TO SMACK PITT PANTHERS

Minnesota's Gophers After Twenty-Second Victory Without Defeat

MARQUETTE MARCHES ON

Several Leading Teams Put On Spot Saturday

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 — (UP) — The blue chips were piled high today as the final October grid session presented the outstanding program of the season — the national championship and a Rose Bowl invitation at stake is two, headline brawls.

Minnesota's mighty Gophers were out for their 22nd consecutive victory against Northwestern's undefeated, untied Wildcats at Evanston. If the Bierman squad can hurdle this barrier — an it is a heavy favorite to do so — national heavy favorite to do so — national of beating Iowa, Texas and Wisconsin.

Fordham's Rams were the betting underdogs as they marched against the Pittsburgh Panthers at New York. A win for the Rams means almost a sure free ride to Pasadena for the New Year's classic and will just as surely kill the hopes of Pitt — already defeated by Duquesne. However, if the Panthers win today they will still rate consideration because of con-

All American Roll Call

Marshall Goldberg Pittsburgh

WHEN YOU talk about Marshall Goldberg, 18-year-old University of Pittsburgh sophomore back, it's difficult to forget superlatives. For Goldberg, of Elkins, W. Va., is 180 pounds of the best backfield material you could find anywhere. A sensational open field runner, a fair passer and possessing a great amount of football heart, this lad ranks as one of the candidates to make All-American this year.

winning victories over Ohio State and Notre Dame.

Five other leading eleven risk unmarred records today and a sixth, Marquette, marched to victory, 20 to 6, over St. Mary's at Chicago last night. University of Detroit pulled an upset last night by downing Duquesne, Conqueror of Pitt, 14 to 7. The other perfect record teams, named first, Pitt Army against Colgate, Villanova vs. Bucknell, Holy Cross vs. Temple, Yale vs. Dartmouth and on the west coast Santa Clara vs. Auburn.

MARQUETTE WIN IS TRIBUTE TO STERLING BACK

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 — (UP) — Marquette's high-geared golden avalanche stepped into the top flight of the nation's undefeated teams today with its smashing 20 to 6 victory over the galloping Gaels of St. Mary's college before 60,000 at soldier field last night.

The crack Milwaukee eleven broke the spirit of the Gaels with two touchdowns by Capt. Ray (Buzz) Buivid before the first period was half over and from there it was a matter of halting the charge of St. Mary's powerful backs.

Only once did the Gaels break loose. Late in the first period, Huey Sill and Ned O'Laughlin carried the ball 82 yards in a steady march, with O'Laughlin scoring the Gaels' lone touchdown from the three-yard line.

Marquette whipped the heavier Gaels on the ground. Buivid, hailed as one of the nation's finest passers, withheld his fire until the start of the third period when he completed a touchdown pass to Bill Higgins for a gain of 29 yards.

Marquette received the opening kickoff and drove straight down the field 78 yards for a touchdown on seven plays, with Buivid dashing around his own right end from the 12-yard line for the score.

Cuff kicked off and Buivid checked a rapid aerial thrust by the Gaels by intercepting O'Laughlin's pass on his own 20. He cut toward the sidelines and sprinted through the entire defense for his second touchdown in seven minutes.

St. Mary's threatened again in the fourth period, moving down to the 28-yard line after a 30-yard run by Halfback Frank Shock.

BUD PARMELEE HAS MONEY ARM PUT INTO SHAPE

TOLEDO, Oct. 31 — (UP) — In an effort to regain the effectiveness that has his during the early years of his major league career, Leroy (Bud) Parmelee, recently traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Chicago Cubs, underwent an operation on his pitching arm here late yesterday.

Parmelee was hit on the arm near the shoulder two years ago. The muscle fibers were torn and then knitted improperly.

Dr. William Neil, who performed the operation, said he believed Parmelee's arm would be normal by spring.

About This And That In Many Sports

Buivid All-American

There can be little doubt now that Ray "Buzz" Buivid, Marquette's greatest halfback in many, many years, will be on almost everyone's all-American football team — Buivid passed his team to another victory Friday night, by a hard-earned 20-6 margin over St. Mary from California — St. Mary was favored by most scribes because of superior weight and Slip Madigan's fame, but the Milwaukee Dutchman did everything right, just as he did against Michigan State a week ago — This game was one of the three "guessed" by the janitor, and it was right — The other two were Ohio-Notre Dame and Minnesota-Northwestern, both first-named teams getting the nod. ***

Pitt Versus Fordham

Another game today that is attracting a lot of attention is Pittsburgh and Fordham in New York — Pitt gets the nod from most corners because of its trouncing of Notre Dame last week — The Fordhamites are plenty tough, though, and confident too since beating St. Mary's 7-6 — Coach Jack Sutherland of Pittsburgh is on the radio tonight after the game — He'll be worth hearing. ***

Denny Not Alone

Reports drifting back from the Grandview-Tiger game have it that Bob Denny was not the only Tiger who got out of the way of Bobcat ball carriers — The score indicates there were a lot of others — There must have been to permit a score of 59 to be run up. ***

Grid Game Sunday

There'll be a lot of sport at Denny's field Sunday afternoon when Earl Imler's Boosters take on the South End Merchants of Columbus in a gridiron game — The Boosters have many ex-high griders on their roster, and Byron Eby, who used to skirt the ends and off-tackle for Ohio State, is coaching the crew — Two o'clock is the time. ***

ROSS WITHOUT Foe AS GARCIA FIGHTS TO DRAW

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 — (UP) — Barney Ross was still without a challenger for the welterweight championship today after two leading contenders in the 147-pound division battled to a 15-round draw last night.

Izzy Janazzo Rose from the canvas where he had been knocked by Ceferino Garcia, swarthy little Filipino, in the eighth round and came back to earn a draw. The winner had been promised a shot at Ross.

Both fighters finished strong and brought the small crowd of 5,400 spectators in Madison Square Garden to its feet with a whirlwind 15th round. Garcia was cut. Janazzo weighed 145½; Garcia, 145½.

MORE CHILDREN FOUND TO HAVE DECAYED TEETH

DALLAS (UP) — Bad teeth are breaking the health and future possibilities of an amazing large percentage of American children. Dr. Ernest A. Branch, Raleigh, N. C., told the joint convention of the Texas and Oklahoma State Dental Societies here.

Maladies most frequently produced in children from neglect of decayed teeth, he said, are tuberculosis and ailments of the kidneys and heart. "Being dark, soft and warm, the mouth is a perfect incubator for germs and bad teeth provide the perfect culture media within it," said Dr. Branch, who is oral hygiene director of the North Carolina state board of health.

Tuberculosis germs breed rapidly in a mouth full of bad teeth, he said, and then are carried into the lungs. Diet, hygiene and prenatal care all are involved in building good teeth, Dr. Branch said.

The fondness of Americans for sweets and soft foods was blamed by Dr. Branch for the current increase in tooth decay.

GOLF DENOTES PLUS FOURS TO RUSSIAN YOUTH

MOSCOW (UP) — Golf to the well-dressed Russian, is the name of a style of clothing—baggy plus fours. It is the ambition of nearly every young man to own a pair, but he wears them to the theater or on the street, and not on the links.
The game itself, while becoming in other countries a proletarian as well as a rich man's sport, has failed to make headway in the Soviet union.
American residents once sought to interest Soviet sportsmen in the game, drove a golf ball from a hill near Moscow to illustrate how it was done, but the idea failed to click.
Nearly every other sport except baseball arouses enthusiasm here, and all are encouraged by the government and Communist party as stimulants to physical culture and for the improvement of health, but the Russian still must take his walk without pursuing a ball.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A THOUGHTLESS BID

SOMETIMES proper procedure differs with the kind of game being played. For example: in rubber bridge it rarely pays to make a weak fourth hand overall of a dealer's bid unable to go game; in duplicate bridge fourth hand may feel obliged to take a slight risk to prevent dealer from easily fulfilling a part game contract, which may give him top score. With the South holding there was no excuse in overcalling West's 1-No Trump in a rubber game, at love score. As West was a very sound bidder, while both North and East were free bidders, South should have calculated that West held nearly all missing strength and that it would not pay to bid 2-Spades, even in a duplicate game.

held the Ace of clubs. Quite likely he held also the Q. The return lead was the 2 of clubs. North played low. Dummy's 10 forced South's Q. The 8 of hearts was returned. Declarer's K won the trick. North put up the 7, as an encouraging card. Then declarer led his Ace of hearts. North played the 2 and South the 6, almost certainly showing that South held no more of the suit.

The 9 of clubs was led. When North played low, so did dummy. South's Ace took the trick. Now South showed the real distribution of his hand, by leading back his fourth-best diamond. Declarer's 9 lost to North's Q, and that player's last spade was led. Dummy played low. South played his 10 and declarer was in with the Ace. Now declarer began to feel more comfortable. The only anxiety was whether South or North held the K of diamonds. Dummy was put in lead with the K of clubs. At the ninth trick the 8 of diamonds was led from dummy. Wisely South put up his 10, to make matters harder for declarer. The latter's J won the trick, leaving him a diamond tenace over South.

Dummy was put in lead with its Q of hearts. The 2 of diamonds was led from dummy, through South's K-6, up to West's A-7. I do not think that South knew just what declarer had, but that did not matter. Declarer won the eleventh and twelfth tricks with his diamond tenace. Then he had to give South the fourth defensive trick, by leading a spade.

Bidding went: West, 1-No Trump, second hand; South, 2-Spades; West, 2-No Trumps; East, 3-No Trumps.

Of course the opening lead was the 7 of spades. Dummy played low. Declarer's K killed South's 9. There was no doubt that South

Industry and commerce will balance the government budget."

Major Pealer praised Gov. Davey's administration and urged voters to vote the judicial ticket. He said about 30 per cent of the people fail to vote this ticket. He urged them to put their X under the rooster, vote for Stephen and Myers for judges of the supreme court, put Jones in the court of appeals and vote for Probate Judge Charles C. Young. Major Pealer reviewed the Davey administration briefly showing the improvements made in the payment of compensation to workmen, increase in old-age pensions, his fight to remove the sales tax on food, and drivers' license and responsibility laws.

"A Columbus newspaper gave a wonderful approval of Ohio's old-age pension today," Mr. Pealer said, "in an editorial hitting the security act."

Poor Record or Good One
"I cannot believe the people will promote one governor with a poor record and retire one with a fine record." Looking at a large picture of President Roosevelt on the platform the speaker said, "You may not be a perfect president but until a perfect president comes along we'll string along with you."

The great strides President Roosevelt has made in returning prosperity to this country were outlined by Mrs. Fletcher. "The New Deal government gave the first practical aid ever extended to farmers," she said. "That the New Deal has vigorously attacked the farm problem and has greatly improved farm prices, must be conceded by even the most bitter critics."

"Under the Tennessee Valley Authority electricity has been sold to communities served by TVA at less than one-half the national average charged by private companies. Farm homes were left in the dark by private utilities because of the high cost of extending rural power. Eight out of nine of the six million farmers in the United States have no electricity. Three-fourths of the American farm women carry water into their homes. Roosevelt created the rural electrification act which has brought new comfort to farm families, a rise in rural real estate, new markets for electrical goods."

"The new Social Security law means more protection from destitute old age, from starved and neglected childhood, from loss of work with no savings, from leading a hand-to-mouth existence in worry and want. The depression has taught us the enormous waste of unpreparedness, and that social insurance stabilizes business."

Read Financial Pages
She urged voters to read the financial pages of the newspapers to see the great benefits Roosevelt has brought to this country.

"The president is enabling the nation to balance its budget so he can balance the nation's budget," she continued. "The first step to reduce national debt is to lighten personal debt. The acid test as we go to the polls is to compare the net results and benefits to the average man under the Old Deal and the New Deal, and ask ourselves under which regime will the average man fare better."

Mr. Goeller asked voters to approve the bond issue for the sewage disposal plant and see that their neighbors went to the polls next Tuesday.

chance of winning. Few but wishful thinking partisans believe Lemke can do more in this campaign than pare down the aggregate of Roosevelt votes in many states where the Coughlin-Lemke alliance with Townsend Old Age Pensioners represents an otherwise impotent minority.

Known by Midnight

Polls will open early Tuesday morning. Unless this election is quite close the winner will be identified by midnight and by Wednesday morning the nation should know by what degree the Republican drive has reduced the current Democratic majority of more than 200 in the House of Representatives.

Political confusion is demonstrated by the fact that President Roosevelt not only is supported by the Democratic party but, in various states, by organized Progressives, Farmer-Laborites and the American Labor party. Opposed to him and whooping it up for Gov. Landon are the American Liberty League, composed of both Republicans and Democrats, the National Jeffersonian Democrats, and a sprinkling of unorganized bolters from the party of which the president is the head.

Left wing supporters of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket apparently believe the post-civil war party structure will be in collapse four years hence. Each in his own way is maneuvering to take over the liberal political machine Mr. Roosevelt created under the New Deal label. That is notably true of the LaFollette's Progressive party in Wisconsin, of the American Labor party and of the purportedly Non-Partisan Labor League in which John L. Lewis, most energetic of American labor leaders, is a foremost figure.

Swinging through the populous eastern mid-Atlantic states this week, Mr. Roosevelt challenged the G. O. P. on its charge that the New Deal Social Security program of old age pensions was a disguised tax on the worker's wage. Republicans have been making progress in industrial states in the last 10 days with the argument that the one per cent of wages which the government will begin collecting next January may not return to the workers commensurate old age protection. The Democratic counter-attack emphasizes the dollar-for-dollar contributions of employers to the old age fund and the additional levy on employers for unemployment relief benefits which are part of the Social Security program. Mr. Roosevelt hit hard at his favorite target, "Economic Royalists," in his swing through New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, home of the duPont family which has financed some of the more spectacular anti-Roosevelt campaigning of the past two years.

Why Double Liability On Bank Stock Should Go!

Because

More than 99 per cent of all accounts in Ohio's state banks are fully covered by deposit insurance up to $5000. on each account, Deposit insurance is paid for by the banks themselves.

Twenty-two other states have eliminated double liability.

It would cause banks to give depositors greater protection through more paid in capital.

You Cannot Sell bank stock unless double liability is removed.

Banks wish to increase their capital so they can better serve the credit needs of their communities so business need not go elsewhere.

Double liability has means less than 5 cents on the dollar to depositors.

Vote "YES" and get as many others as possible to vote "YES" on the double liability amendment known as Article XIII Section 3.

DARBY TO SEEK BIDS NOV. 21 FOR SCHOOL ADDITION

Bids will be opened by the Darby township Board of Education at noon, Nov. 21, for the construction of the addition to the school building at Darby.

The addition will cost approximately $54,750. The board will issue $30,000 worth of bonds, approved by the voters at the last election, and a grant of $24,750 has been made by WPA.

This addition will be used for high school purposes. It will contain four classrooms, a library, combined auditorium and gymnasium seating about 600, manual training and home economics rooms, locker and shower rooms, office, a study hall seating 75, and a heating plant. One room will be used as a classroom and science laboratory combined.

The building will match the present school in architecture.

ELECTION BOARD GIVES SUPPLIES TO 40 PRECINCTS

Members of the Board of Elections were busy at the courthouse Saturday packing precinct supplies for the election Tuesday.

The supplies were distributed Saturday afternoon to 40 precinct judges. For the first time the board is making arrangements to keep a running tabulation of the vote.

This tabulation will be kept separately from the official tabulation and returns can be announced at various times during the night. Although the election has fewer candidates listed than at the primary officials believe the returns will be late in arriving because of the huge vote anticipated. They predicted returns would start arriving about 9 p. m.

Will She Become Queen?

IF KING EDWARD VIII of Great Britain should abdicate, discussed as an eventuality—though remote—in case he marries Mrs. Ernest (Wally) Simpson, then Princess Elizabeth, 10-year-old daughter of the Duke of York, would be second from the British throne. Princess "Lilibeth" is the eldest child of the Duke of York, who would succeed King Edward. His title would be King Albert I. Princess Elizabeth, who some day may be Queen Elizabeth, is shown in a recent portrait and astride her horse.

All Hospitals Filled as Planes Harass Madrid

MADRID, Oct. 31. — (UP) — Nationalist and Loyalist air fleets dropped a deadly hail of bombs on the beautiful cities of their country today in a savage bid for quick victory in the civil war.

Loyalist fleets bombed the nationalist airports at Talavera de La Reina, Salamanca and Seville, in retaliation for yesterday's terrible bombardment of Madrid, and the nationalists bombed Malaga, on the south coast, concentrating on the water front hoping to hit foreign ships suspected of bringing arms.

MADRAS, India, Oct. 31. — (UP) — Approximately 50 persons were killed, while 15,000 were made homeless, by the cyclone which swept over a 200-mile area in the vicinity of Chirala, reports from the devastated area today disclosed.

A tidal wave accompanied the cyclone at Masulipatam, inundating the city.

Damage was estimated at 75,000 pounds (approximately $375,000). The storm area lay to the north of Madras.

San Francisco's Mayor Declares State of Emergency

WAREHOUSEMEN QUIT Hawaiian and Alaskan Cities Endangered

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31. — (UP) — The maritime strike spread to Baltimore today as 700 members of the International Seamen's Union voted to quit nine ships moored in the harbor here.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31. — (UP) — An ever-widening strike wave struck a dangerous blow at the food supplies of Pacific Coast ports of Hawaii and Alaska today. A maritime strike affecting 4,000 miles of coastline became complicated by a walkout of warehousemen in the vital San Francisco market.

Wholesale staples were tied up in the city. Mayor Angelo Rossi declared a state of emergency. Honolulu, Hilo, Juneau, Fairbanks, Nome and other Hawaiian and Alaskan cities, dependent on Pacific shipping for staple groceries, feared acute shortages as approximately 200 vessels cancelled sailing orders.

Pantries Stocked San Francisco housewives, hearing strike rumors for many weeks, have stocked their pantries with emergency provisions and retail grocers reported they had enough supplies on their shelves to last several days. But it was feared a protracted strike might seriously curtail distribution of essential foods.

Following an exchange of notes between unions and employers and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, in which no immediate peace plans were formulated, the San Francisco Central Labor Council which ruled San Francisco for four days during its 1934 general strike met and mapped strike strategy.

Pacific coast water-borne commerce was at a standstill. The ports of San Francisco, Seattle, San Pedro, San Diego, Juneau, Vancouver, Honolulu and others were deserted except for knots of pickets stationed in front of piers and extra details of special policemen.

Madame Perkins sought a quick solution of the marine strike, urging the shipowners and unions to "get together" at once and reach a settlement on the contract disputes which precipitated a walkout of 35,000 members of seven unions.

Hospitals were crowded with men, women and children mangled in the nationalist bombardment of Madrid and Getafe.

Deaths in the Madrid raid were listed this morning at 34, with 200 wounded. In the Getafe raid, unofficial estimates were that 70 persons died.

The damage to Madrid as the nerve center of the loyalist cause was negligible. Most of the people killed were civilians, many were women and children.

But reports to the defense services insisted that in the loyalist raids, centered entirely on nationalist airports, much damage was done. It was asserted that in the raid on Talavera, the seacoast in 48 hours, between 15 and 20 nationalist planes were wrecked, and that at Salamanca most of a fleet of 10 three-motored bombers were destroyed.

OHIO DRIVERS' LAW EFFECTIVE MONDAY, NOV. 2

COLUMBUS, Oct. 31. — (UP) — Ohio's recently enacted drivers' license law will be effective Monday at the expiration of a 30-day extension period of grace from the original date of Oct. 1.

The state highway patrol and police officials of all cities have been instructed to demand of all motorists that they hold such driving permits.

The examination of temporary driving permit holders will begin in all cities and counties Monday.

A supply of pamphlets listing possible questions to be asked applicants requiring examinations for drivers' license have been left at the police department for distribution.

The first examination will be held the first and third Tuesday of each month. The change in the first examination date was caused by the election.

State highway patrolmen and city police will cooperate in conducting the tests. The mayor's office in the front of the city building will be used by the officers. The office will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

ST. PAUL CHURCH FILLED AS G. O. P. RALLIES FRIDAY

St. Paul's A. M. E. church was filled to capacity Friday night for a Republican rally.

Speakers were Robert Barcus, colored attorney of Columbus, and Fred W. Postle, candidate for state senate. A musical program was furnished by a Harmony group of Columbus. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Republicans will rally in the pavilion at Williamsport, Saturday night, with Stanley Stewart of the Ohio Industrial Commission as the principal speaker.

IT'S HALLOWEEN, SO PREPARE FOR MANY SURPRISES

Mickey "mice" witches, ghosts and scores of other characters behind faces done in oil will be riding around together in automobiles and parading Circleville's downtown streets Saturday night.

It's Halloween, the night when things movable on the porch or in the yard start moving. It's a night to expect the unexpected.

There will be no civic celebration. Officials believed a parade would be difficult to handle in the downtown traffic and would follow too closely after the Pumpkin Show pageants.

They expect to make a mardi gras pageant a part of the Armistice day celebration sponsored by the American Legion.

'Stork Derby' Judge

JUSTICE MIDDLETON of the Ontario supreme court has been appointed to decide on the validity of the "Stork" clause in the will of Charles Vance Millar. Justice Middleton also will decide which of the contending Toronto mothers is to receive the bequest of $775,000 as directed by Millar's will. The "Stork Derby" ends Oct. 31. Hearings will start on Nov. 6.

FANTASTIC BABY DERBY REACHES CLOSE SATURDAY

TORONTO, Oct. 31. — (UP) — Charles Vance Millar's 10-year $750,000 baby derby came to a smashing finish today, in as muddled a state as that sublime jester "Stork" have wished.

With the winner almost impossible to pick, law suits pending, relatives contesting the Millar will in which he left his fortune to Toronto's most prolific mother, the Ontario government prepared to intervene in what Millar's friends call "the greatest practical joke" of that eccentric lawyer's career.

Six women with nine children each apparently were tied in their claims to the fortune, but three, expected new babies momentarily.

Premier N. B. Hepburn was ready with legislation designed to keep the lawyers, who plan a series of legal actions on behalf of various contestants, from getting most of the money.

Dr. Dafee Disgusted Dr. Roy Allen Dafee, who ushered the Dionne quintuplets into the world, was in town but he refused to take the case of any of the mothers expecting last-minute babies. He said he considered "this thing started by the late Mr. Millar is a little more than slightly disgusting."

Stories of the lawyer who dropped dead at 4:30 p. m. on Oct. 31, 1926, were on everyone's lips. One close friend of the baby derby's sponsor, summed him up like this: "They've tried to make Charley out to be a crack-pot and a malevolent demon. But he was only a sublime joker. All his life he was thinking up practical jokes. This is his masterpiece. I read somewhere that Charley made his peculiar will because he loved children and revered motherhood. Get that out of your mind. He hated women."

"We used to sit together for hours in the old days. Charley, as a lawyer, handled many wills. He'd often say: 'Dead men always come back to plague us.' Nobody ever heard of Millar outside of Toronto before he died. But 10 years after his death, everybody from here to Shanghai knows all about him and that cuckoo will."

President Continues to Hit "Economic Royalists"

NEW YORK, Oct. 31. — (UP) — The $10,000,000 presidential campaign of 1936 winds up today on platforms in New York and St. Louis where candidates Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alf M. Landon make final nation-wide appeals for election day support.

Well more than 42,000,000 voters will express their preference on election day, next Tuesday. If the law of averages governs, approximately 1,000,000 of those votes will be thrown out by election officials because they are improperly marked or otherwise invalid.

From coast to coast come reports of record-breaking registrations of new voters and men and women who have not for many years taken the trouble to qualify themselves.

Both Need Support Gov. Landon is hurrying wordward after an investigation of New York City, which President Roosevelt must carry by a large margin if he is to win this state and its 47 electoral votes. The president is back in his town house here after a final swing through mid-Atlantic states where the Kansan must win if he is to go to the White House next January.

Mid-way between the coast, former President Herbert C. Hoover last night fired his parting shot at Mr. Roosevelt from a Denver, Colo. platform. Gov. Alfred E. Smith tonight will toss his brown derby in the air at Albany, N. Y., where he served four terms as Democratic governor before he was nominated for president in 1923. Smith will plead with Democrats to vote for Gov. Landon.

Twenty-four hours after Gov. Landon appeared here in Madison Square Garden before a boisterous (un)enthusiastic crowd, Mr. Roosevelt began returning the Republican fire from the Academy of Music across the river, in Brooklyn. The president tonight will follow Gov. Landon to the garden platform in what Democrats promise will be the stand-out political demonstration of this campaign.

The candidates are in the stretch and the whips are going. Father Charles E. Coughlin, bitter-spoken Detroit priest, came into New York in the campaign wind-up but told questioners he would concede, now, that Union Party presidential candidate William Lemke has 10 (Continued on Page Ten.)

NEW YORK STILL TWICE AS LARGE AS NEAREST CITY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. — (UP) — New York with a population of 7,364,620 persons on July 1, a gain of 434,170 over 1930, still is twice as big as Chicago and is the queen of the nation's cities on the basis of an estimate prepared today at the census bureau.

Compiling a list of the nation's 40 largest cities on the basis of estimates made from a mathematical formula, the bureau's figures showed that Chicago with 3,599,997 persons, a gain of 223,559 persons over 1930, easily took second place. London still is easily the biggest city in the world, however, with 8,202,215.

No changes occurred during the period in the positions of the first twelve cities in ranking although all showed increases for the period. Occupants of the first twelve positions were New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, St. Louis, Baltimore, Boston, Pittsburgh San Francisco and Milwaukee.

The estimate was made shortly after the census bureau disclosed the nation's population on July 1, at 128,429,000.

Wardrobe for 'Pinocchio' Largest Used by Company

When "Pinocchio" of the long nose brings his adventures to the Cliftona theatre next Wednesday, the wardrobe which accompanies him will be one of the largest sent out by the Clare Tree Major company. The show is being sponsored by the Child Conservation league.

Marian DePew, who has been head of the costume department for ahead of the season to prepare things for the exacting marionette when he decides to go on his travels.

Pinocchio, himself, has only two outfits, the wall paper suit which his father makes for him, and the real boy's clothes in which he finds himself when he has earned the right to be a boy, and the Blue Fairy has brought about the magic change. But the many people whom he meets on his restless wanderings need a great deal of costuming indeed. The Blue Fairy with the azure hair is the loveliest, but there are also Harlequin and Pierette, the huge carabineer, the even bigger Fire Eater, Geppetto, Lampwick, the circus trainer, the driver for the Land of Toys, and a great many people besides.

Animals Different

To Miss DePew, these costumes are an everyday affair, but the animals with which Pinocchio falls in are a different matter.

All summer, in the little private studio she calls "Peter Pan" because it is set among the trees high on a cliff above the Atlantic Ocean, Miss DePew works with Pinocchio's animal friends.

Medora, the Blue Fairy's poodle footman, come to town with a brand new head, his long white ears flapping and a soucy blue velvet tricorn proudly perched on his crown. The Cat, arrived after a season in "Peter Pan" with a very smug expression; the Fox had evidently not benefited in mood, though he had in profile, by the change. The two Black Rabbits were friendly little persons to work on; but the doctors—they were just as difficult as doctors could be. A Crow, an Owl and a Cricket—they were the doctors.

Paint, glue, paper mache paste—they are nasty, sticky unpleasantly smelly things to fill "Peter Pan" with during the long, warm summer months, with the garden outside a riot of bright, fragrant flowers, and the fresh sea breezes flowing in from the sparkling ocean.

Miss DePew joined the Clare Tree company intending only to take a year's vacation from a promising career in science. She found the work so fascinating that she has never gone back to science. She has designed, and in great part executed, all the thousands of costumes in the wardrobe of the Clare Tree Major company.

ASSEMBLY SEES POLITICAL SHOW

Banners flying high, songs of the political parties sounding throughout the auditorium, party flowers carried by supporters of the parties, political speeches being given by speakers of each party, and symbols of the parties worn by participants was a result of a huge political rally which was presented in an assembly Thursday by members of the eighth grade.

The Democrat, Republican and Union parties were represented with the classes having been divided into three parts.

The rally climaxed the study of the political situation by the eighth grade history classes for the past several weeks. The three classes have worked out the party song, glower, symbol, platform, banners, and biographies of the candidates on the Republican, and Union parties.

The program has been directed and prepared by Mr. Lea.

ELECTION TO BE HELD ON NOV. 3

All members of the student body and faculty of Circleville High school will be given an opportunity to cast their votes for president of the United States and governor of Ohio November 3, in the school election conducted by the Social Civics classes.

The Civics classes have chosen a committee consisting of twelve members to be in charge of the election. Laddie Goeller has been selected as chairman of the group. The election will be held in the gym next Tuesday morning.

A sub committee composed of Betty Bowsher, Laddie Goeller, and Dave Jackson are to secure the ballots.

Jim Davis, Atwell Lindsey, and Dick Mader will construct the voting booths and ballot boxes.

Those in charge of registration are Eleanor Driesbach, Mary McGinnis, and Ruth Robinson.

John Kuhn, Betty Nickerson, and Helen Sayre form the committee in charge of the counting of the votes.

In the straw vote conducted by the Civics classes two weeks ago Roosevelt and Davey were victorious over their Republican opponents. However student representatives of both major political parties have been conducting an intense campaign since the straw vote occurred which may influence the election.

The Civics classes will use the result of the election as the basis of class discussions. The pupils will analyze the school election and compare it with the national and state elections and with the straw vote.

VARIETY GROUP IN FIRST MEET

The Variety Group No. One, a unit of the Senior Girl Reserves, held its first meeting of the year, Wednesday evening. Marjorie Leach was hostess, assisted by the President, Rosemary Metzger.

After discussion, the club decided to keep its original name of Variety Group No. 1. The slogan, "Courage, Honesty and Success" was chosen.

A committee composed of Marjorie Leach, Rosemary Neuding and Dorothy Walters was appointed by the president, to choose a suitable style of pin for the club, bearing the emblem which is a clever combination of "A", "V", "G" and Roman Numeral I. The pins are to be done in the club colors, jade and silver.

Games and refreshments followed the business meeting.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Dorothy Walters in two weeks.

LEAGUE OFFERS CHILDREN'S PLAY

The local chapter of the Child Conservation League is sponsoring the production of "Pinocchio" which is to be given at 4:00 p. m. on November 4 at the Cliftona Theatre.

The play is to be given by the Clare Tree Major Players who presented "Robin Hood" last year at the high school auditorium. Following the performance of "Pinocchio" here, the Players will immediately go to Columbus to give an identical performance at the Memorial Hall on the following day.

The Junior Girl Reserves are aiding the League by selling tickets.

FRESHMEN WORK ON ORAL TASKS

Miss Rooney's freshman English class is studying oral composition. As an example of this kind of work the class staged a debate. The question was: Resolved, that the United States Should Never Enter Another War.

The affirmative team members were: Mary Fickardt, Howard Orr and James Shea. Their opponents on the negative side were: Tyne Davis, Jane Paul and Pat Mogan.

Miss Rooney, the judge of the debate, gave the decision to the affirmative team.

Later in the semester this class will do more work on debating.

RAINBOW TRAIL FROM HUNGARY TO HOLLYWOOD

NEW YORK (UP)—The 13th child of a Hungarian farmer has added another success story to the many centering around the movies. She told it upon arriving from Europe before continuing her journey to Hollywood.

Franziska Gaal is the girl, known abroad for her screen and stage work. And as a linguist she is something of a prodigy. She says that she has been studying English less than one month. Over that period, however, she developed a vocabulary of sufficient scope to carry her through a New York interview.

Miss Gaal's appearance in America is due to Adolph Zukor of Paramount Pictures. But her rise came about through her own determination. Her father, said Miss Gaal, disapproved when she announced that she wanted to begin a stage career. That caused her to practice a mild deception. After that her family thought she was going to school, when as a matter of fact, she was making her first entrance over the threshold of a Hungarian stage door.

Law, Love and Temperance

In his epistle to the Romans Paul urged them to submit to the government under which they were living, saying, "Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

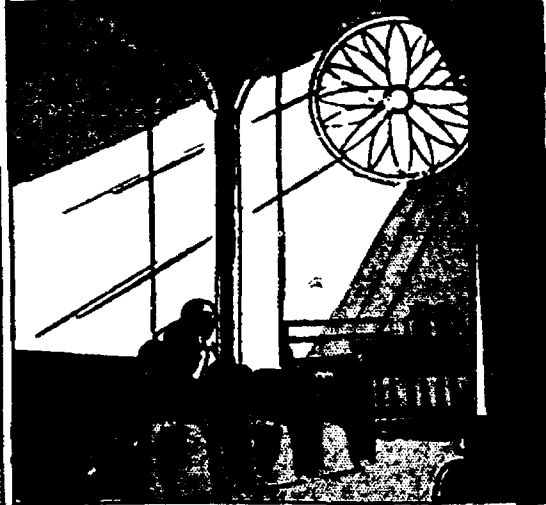

Scripture—Romans 13:1-14.

Our duty to God and our duty to the state need not conflict with one another. "The powers that be are ordained of God." Government "is a minister of God to thee for good."

God's law and the state's agree in such words as "Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal." Above all such law is the law of life. "Love therefore is the fulfillment of the law."

"Let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light. . . . Let us walk not in revelling and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and jealousy." (GOLDEN TEXT—Romans 14:21.)

Romans 14:21—"It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth."

Law, Love and Temperance "BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Sunday School Lesson on above topic for Nov. 1 is Romans 13:1-14, the Golden Text being Rom. 14:21, "It is good not to eat flesh, nor drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth.")

IN HIS "Essay on Man" Pope says, "Order is Heaven's first law." On every hand we have evidence that we live in a universe of law and order. The God who has subjected the universe to the discipline of law, in no sense exempts man from this discipline of orderly government under law.

Submission to Government
The New Testament has much to say about a Christian's duties to his government: "Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers: for there is no power but to God; and the powers that be are ordained of God: He that resisteth the power, withstandeth the ordinance of God; and they that withstand shall receive to themselves judgment." Government is God's method of securing social order and welfare. "It is a minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for it beareth not the sword in vain. . . . Wherefore ye must needs be in subjection, not only because of the wrath, but for conscience sake." This reference to conscience indicates both the spirit and the limit is reached when government requires of its citizen that which transgresses Christian conscience. Here the Christian follows good precedent in saying, "We must obey God rather than men."

Support of Government
The government owes no man a living. It owes him only the opportunity of making a living. As citizens of the government we may not expect to enjoy the benefits of government without willingness to support that government in proportion to our ability. "For this cause ye pay tribute also: Render to all their dues; tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom." Honesty in payment of one's taxes justly due the government, honesty in accord with one's oaths and affidavits; fidelity to one's oath of office, all these are no less Christian duties than they are patriotic duties.

The Law of Love
Certainly a Christian will try to pay his debts: "Owe no man anything, save to love one another," which means that there are some debts we can pay off, and others which must always remain unpaid obligations. We must keep on loving, for debts of love are never discharged. We shall always owe love. Love must motivate us if we are ever to keep either the laws of God or of the state. Keeping the law of love, we can not break any law. True love is the effective preventive of adultery, murder, theft, covetousness and every other violation of the laws of God or of the state. "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; love therefore is the fulfillment of the law."

The Enabling Inspiration
The enabling inspiration for all this is a conviction of the coming

CAKES, SAUSAGE, PUMPKIN PIE

THESE are days when thoughts turn naturally to important things of life, such as sausage and wheat cakes and pumpkin pie. Incidentally, of course, there is the election, which is vital in a remote sort of way, but the others are matters of more intimate interest. When the mercury descends to its lower levels, as it does occasionally on these bright Autumn mornings, the appealing spectacle of a stack of golden brown cakes and a generous link of sausage arises pleasantly in the mind's eye.

There may be better ways of starting the day than by attacking and conquering such a gastronomic citadel but they do not present themselves for consideration at the moment. As for pumpkin pie, one whose texture is smooth and rich, with just the proportion and kinds of spices and perfect crust—among all of the attractions of a delightful season which combines most of the beauties of nature, there is none more appealing than this.

THE NIGHTS OF SPIRITS

ARE you still youthful enough to get a bit of a kick out of Halloween doings? Or are you aged enough so it seems all nonsense, and you feel that youth should quit such senseless foolishness, and go home and study its next day's school lesson?

While such observances are only a kid frolic today, it was not so many years ago that the young folks took them partly seriously. As a night when the souls of the departed were supposed to be let loose from the realm of shades, witches and devils were also supposed to be doing an active business. And the idea was inherited from innumerable centuries back, that through commerce with these delegations from the unseen world, you could learn the future.

So the young folks would place nuts in pairs on a hot grate, and name them for certain lovers. If the nuts roasted nicely, that meant true love. If one popped, that was unfaithfulness. If they burned together, that told of marriage. But our sophisticated young folks would say today that the only true thing about that sign is that all lovers are nertz.

The bad boy has always revelled in Halloween. He carried off folks' gates or rattled their windows, and felt that his doings could be attributed to the spirits.

The younger kids at their pranks are a pretty enough sight. Let them dress up in their romantic costumes and flourish their jack-o-lanterns to their heart's content. If you pretend to be terribly scared when you see their ghostly appearance, that elates them supremely.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Not long ago I had occasion to refer to a renewal of talk in favor of an eleventh cabinet department; we have 10 now, as compared with the five Uncle Sam started with.

My statement was to the effect that this suggestion was a development from the activities of a senate committee, created at the last session of congress, "to do a job," as the committee's chairman, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, expresses it, "of reorganization and simplification in government."

The addition of another department to the present list of 10 may or may not seem like "simplification."

Senator Byrd evidently thinks not, for he objects to my story.

"NEVER DISCUSSED"

He writes to me that it "is absolutely" without foundation.

"Such a matter has never been discussed by the committee and our experts have made no recommendation whatever with respect to it. Our committee has never even discussed the creation of any department and I personally, unless there are reasons of which I am not cognizant, would not make a recommendation of a new cabinet position."

The senator adds:

ROOSEVELT'S LUCK HELD GOOD

WASHINGTON — There is something about the present political campaign not unlike a baseball season. One team has a great bunch of players, all the ballyhoo in the world, plenty of money to spend, but lacks that indefinable but absolutely essential "something" it takes to bring home the bacon.

Some people call it luck, some call it jinx, some call it teamwork.

Whatever it is, Roosevelt has it and Landon hasn't.

If there ever has been a luckier presidential candidate than Franklin Delano Roosevelt, old-timers who have been covering campaigns since before Bryan can't recall his name.

In 1932, Dame Fortune handed him the Depression and the tidal wave of resentment against Herbert Hoover, which would have swept almost any candidate into office.

This year, as if enamoured of his golden voice and captivating smile, Lady Luck again has given him all the breaks. When he appeared in Chicago it was warm and sunshiny. Landon's entry was made in a deluge of rain. In Detroit, Landon addressed a shivering audience huddled in one end of the ball park. To Roosevelt Dame Fortune gave a lovely Indian summer evening.

ROOSEVELT SILENCE

Landon has been pushed out in the open on foreign affairs, the tariff, farm aid, relief, and so on down the line.

Roosevelt has coasted along without putting himself on record on hardly anything. There isn't a person in the country (and some of the President's friends say this includes FDR himself) who can state with assurance what he will do regarding the Constitution, the Supreme Court, taxation, labor, agriculture, the NRA and industry.

Adroitly shunning details, he has declared that the viewpoint which guided him during the past four years will be continued in the next. And it is remarkable that the Republican master minds have failed so completely to nail this to the mast.

Here again is where luck has smiled on Franklin Roosevelt. He was able to get away with what he has, chiefly because of the deep cleavage within GOP ranks over basic policies. They themselves haven't known what they wanted.

LIBERALS VS. LIBERTY LEAGUE

One one side has been the little band of Kansas editors who first launched Landon, built him up to presidential stature, put him across at the Cleveland Convention. They are the soundest advisers Landon ever had. But they are definitely on the Left flank.

On the Right flank are the big moneyed boys, who jumped on the Landon bandwagon after he was built up in Cleveland. They are the boys who furnish the jack—the stuff which makes election wheels go round. They are the J. P. Morgans, the Rockefellers, the duPonts, the Liberty Leaguers. They are essential, and they know it. So they have their say.

But their say has contributed materially to the prospective Roosevelt landslide.

CHAPTER 35

"IT'S ALL RIGHT, honey," Bill said, "I'm here."

Alix withdrew from his arms. Not, however, before she had felt their comforting strength as they sat in his car.

"I don't know what the matter with me," she tried to say lightly. "I guess I'm just being emotional."

"You're just a lonesome little kid," he said. "This may be home to you but I guess it's hard getting used to it."

"Maybe that's it," she answered and was glad when they reached Will Hartley's lodge.

Changing to a ski suit in the stuffy room, she thought there would be no more such weakness on her part. But driving home again alone with Bill, she found herself again in his embrace, his lips hard on hers.

"I'm sorry," he said when they were at the door of her house.

"I'm not," she said. That wasn't the last time that Bill kissed her. And so they drifted into a closer companionship. She was—in the parlance of Bairdsville—"going with" Bill from that night on.

Sometimes they stayed at home and read. There were three picture houses in Bairdsville and three times a week they went to the movies. Bill and Alix were invited to all the bridge parties together. Alix went to Bill's house every Sunday night to supper.

Dorcas and Will Hartley were the other two unmarried young people on those parties. They didn't meet too often, however.

They made love—Alix and Bill. A casual kind of love-making. Alix was young, lovely and lonesome. Bill had something locked up in him to forget and with him, Alix, who had always been his "romantic lady." It was inevitable that what happened should have happened.

And it was inevitable that Mae Alexander's observation that "all the women in Bairdsville think Bill is the best catch in town" should change Bill in Alix's eyes. To her, he was still the friend and brother but she saw him as other women did. She saw his power, his personality and his good looks. She felt tenderness for him. But she did not love him.

There was no reason for her to force her feeling for Bill. They were both content with things as they were. Things would always be that way. There was no need to expect time to change anything. Time would go on forever and Alix Carey would live in this padded, cushioned world she had made for herself forevermore. A world where there was no sharp, sweet sensitiveness, no quickening pulse, no hills, no valleys. Nothing but a quiet sameness, where if there was no joy, there was no pain.

There was work and that was good. So another April came.

It found Alix Carey on this April day in overalls, wielding a paintbrush with vigor while Betsy Nathaniel and her admiring bridegroom-to-be looked on with delight.

"What we'll do here," Alix indicated the wainscoting in the low-ceilinged bedroom, "is to use a little more green in the blue to make a natural blend. Then if you decide to use the rose hooked rugs by way of a change from the yellow, you'll have the same values in the walls."

"I simply adore it, don't you, darling?" Betsy asked her beau.

"Say, it's the nuts! I thought you were crazy, Miss Carey, when you suggested a Cape Cod cottage just because Betsy's grandfather came from the Cape, but it's got anything around these parts beat a mile."

"Thanks," Alix wiped the paint from her hands. "It is rather like a doll house I think. You can build on to it, you know. That's the beautiful thing about this type of architecture. You can keep putting on wings and it still doesn't seem to change the proportions. How do you like the pine paneling?"

They liked the wide board pine paneling in "the master's room". They liked the many-paned windows, the hooked rugs, the small-patterned wallpaper, the Governor Winthrop desk and the brass ship asholders. They liked everything about it.

"But how can you do it?" Betsy wanted to know sadly. "How can you design anything as heavenly as this and then walk off and leave it? I mean, doesn't it make you wish you were a bride and this were yours?"

Alix said something to the effect that one of the nice things about interior decorating was that you always had a new one to do and you couldn't want them all. And she was surprised to find that it might have been fun to be doing it for herself all the while knowing that a home without a man in it wasn't fun for any woman. And that a home with a man in it was the nearest to heaven any woman could find on earth!

She told Mae Alexander about it when she returned to the shop and laughed.

"What's so funny about it, Alix? Won't you be having one yourself some day?" Alix dropped her yardstick.

"Why should I?" she asked. Mae bent to pick up the yardstick.

"I wouldn't be surprised if you were to be getting married one of these days," she said, still with bent head.

"I would be surprised," Alix said firmly.

"Well, you don't need to be so set about it. Lots of girls do get married you know. Particularly when they've got a steady beau."

"Oh!" That was all Alix said. But they were wrong, oh, they were wrong about that.

Mae didn't let the subject drop. "If you were to get married, Alix, you wouldn't give up this work, would you?" she asked sometime later.

"I haven't any intention of giving up this work or of getting married," Alix said. "Do you remember if we sent a bill this month to Mrs. Penny? I told her that we wouldn't bill her until May."

"I don't remember anything about it. Alix, you'd look lovely in white satin with a veil. Wouldn't you like to have that kind of a wedding?"

"Sure," Alix said as though she were humoring a very small child. "I'd like to have a train a mile long, 20 bridesmaids wrapped up in cellophane and a chorus of angels. Oh, I must have doves flying around the belfry of the church."

"And a handsome bridegroom," Mae contributed.

"By all means, a handsome bridegroom. Now let me think, whom would you suggest?"

"Clark Gable," Mae said witheringly and was surprised that Alix should look at her as though a point were pressing into her side.

"John Sayre looks like Clark Gable," Kathleen had said to her long ago.

"Enough of that nonsense," she said sternly when she had caught her breath and shut out the picture that sprang into her memory. "I must rush this order out if I'm to catch the last mail."

She knew, she knew very well, that they all expected her to marry Bill Boyd. She wondered if Bill ever heard the things she did, the all-but questions that were put to her.

Betsy Nathaniel invited her, and Bill, to her wedding and tossed the traditional bouquet right into Alix's arms.

That started it. Kay Fox came out bluntly with the question at the wedding party:

"Alix, when are you and Bill going to get married?" Alix smiled and Bill looked at her. Neither of them answered.

That night, Bill said to her, "Alix, will you marry me?" Alix looked up at him, at his broad shoulders, his strong, kind face bent gravely toward her. She saw a procession of good years before her.

She said, "If you want me to, Bill."

Labor Favors Claypool For Congress
John Owens, President District No. 6 United Mine Workers of America, Thomas Ferguson, President of Perry County Central Labor Council and other labor leaders join President Roosevelt in asking the election of HAROLD K. CLAYPOOL to Congress.
The Republican opponent of Claypool introduced a bill to permit prison made goods to compete with Union Made goods. See House Journal Vol. 113.
The independent or Lemke candidate for Congress as Mayor of Chillicothe forced common laborers to file suit against the city to get their wages and as a Member of the State Senate voted with Special Interests for iniquitous Ward Bill. As Mayor at Chillicothe he vetoed reduced electric rates to advantage of utility and against the people.
Claypool's opponents hold the joint title of Labor's Public Enemy Number 1.
The interests of the Common People are with Roosevelt and Claypool. Elect them.

Minnesota's Gophers After Twenty-Second Victory Without Defeat

MARQUETTE MARCHES ON

Several Leading Teams Put On Spot Saturday

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 — (UP) — The blue chips were piled high today as the final October grid session presented the outstanding program of the season — the national championship and a Rose Bowl invitation at stake in two headline bris.

Minnesota's mighty Gophers were out for their 22nd consecutive victory against Northwestern's undefeated, untied Wildcats at Evanston. If the Bierman squad can hurdle this barrier — an it is a heavy favorite to do so — national heavy favorite to do so — national of beating Iowa, Texas and Wisconsin.

Fordham's Rams were the betting underdogs as they marched against the Pittsburgh Panthers at New York. A win for the Rams means almost a sure free ride to Pasadena for the New Year's classic and will just as surely kill the hopes of Pitt — already defeated by Duquesne. However, if the Panthers win today they will still rate consideration because of con-

All American Roll Call

Marshall Goldberg Pittsburgh

WHEN YOU talk about Marshall Goldberg, 18-year-old University of Pittsburgh sophomore back, it's difficult to forget superlatives. For Goldberg, of Elkins, W. Va., is 180 pounds of the best backfield material you could find anywhere. A sensational open field runner, a fair passer and possessing a great amount of football heart, this lad ranks as one of the candidates to make All-American this year.

winning victories over Ohio State and Notre Dame.

Five other leading eleven risk unmarred records today and a sixth, Marquette, marched to victory, 20 to 6, over St. Mary's at Chicago last night. University of Detroit pulled an upset last night by downing Duquesne, Conqueror of Pitt, 14 to 7. The other perfect record teams, named first, pit Army against Colgate, Villanova vs. Bucknell, Holy Cross vs. Temple, Yale vs. Dartmouth and on the west coast Santa Clara vs. Auburn.

MARQUETTE WIN IS TRIBUTE TO STERLING BACK

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 — (UP) — Marquette's high-geared golden avalanche stepped into the top flight of the nation's undefeated teams today with its smashing, 20 to 6 victory over the galloping Gaels of St. Mary's college before 60,000 at Soldier field last night.

The crack Milwaukee eleven broke the spirit of the Gaels with two touchdowns by Capt. Ray (Buzz) Buivid before the first period was half over and from there it was a matter of halting the charge of St. Mary's powerful backs.

Only once did the Gaels break loose. Late in the first period, Huey Sill and Ned O'Laughlin carried the ball 82 yards in a steady march, with O'Laughlin scoring the Gaels' lone touchdown from the three-yard line.

Marquette whipped the heavier Gaels on the ground. Buivid, hailed as one of the nation's finest passers, withheld his fire until the start of the third period when he completed a touchdown pass to Bill Higgins for a gain of 29 yards.

Marquette received the opening kickoff and drove straight down the field 78 yards for a touchdown on seven plays, with Buivid dashing around his own right end from the 12-yard line for the score.

Cuff kicked off and Buivid checked a rapid aerial thrust by the Gaels by intercepting O'Laughlin's pass on his own 20. He cut toward the sidelines and sprinted through the entire defense for his second touchdown in seven minutes.

St. Mary's threatened again in the fourth period, moving down to the 28-yard line after a 30-yard run by Halfback Frank Shock.

BUD PARMELEE HAS MONEY ARM PUT INTO SHAPE

TOLEDO, Oct. 31 — (UP) — In an effort to regain the effectiveness that has his during the early years of his major league career, Leroy (Bud) Parmelee, recently traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Chicago Cubs, underwent an operation on his pitching arm here late yesterday.

Parmelee was hit on the arm near the shoulder two years ago. The muscle fibers were torn and then knitted improperly.

Dr. William Neil, who performed the operation, said he believed Parmelee's arm would be normal by spring.

About This And That In Many Sports

Buivid All-American

There can be little doubt now that Ray "Buzz" Buivid, Marquette's greatest halfback in many years, will be on almost everyone's all-American football team — Buivid passed his team to another victory Friday night, by a hard-earned 20-6 margin over St. Mary from California — St. Mary was favored by most scribes because of superior weight and Slip Madigan's fame, but the Milwaukee Dutchman did everything right, just as he did against Michigan State a week ago — This game was one of the three "guessed" by the janitor, and it was right — The other two are Ohio-Notre Dame and Minnesota-Northwestern, both first-named teams getting the nod. . . .

Pitt Versus Fordham

Another game today that is attracting a lot of attention is Pittsburgh and Fordham in New York — Pitt gets the nod from most corners because of its trouncing of Notre Dame last week — The Fordhamites are plenty tough, though, and confident too since beating St. Mary's 7-6 — Coach Jack Sutherland of Pittsburgh is on the radio tonight after the game — He'll be worth hearing. . . .

Denny Not Alone

Reports drifting back from the Grandview-Tiger game have it that Bob Denny was not the only Tiger who got out of the way of Bobcat ball carriers — The score indicates there were a lot of others — There must have been to permit a score of 59 to be run up. . . .

Grid Game Sunday

There'll be a lot of sport at Denny's field Sunday afternoon when Earl Imler's Boosters take on the South End Merchants of Columbus in a gridiron game — The Boosters have many ex-high griders on their roster, and Byron Eby, who used to skirt the ends and off-tackle for Ohio State, is coaching the crew — Two o'clock is the time. . . .

ROSS WITHOUT Foe AS GARCIA FIGHTS TO DRAW

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 — (UP) — Barney Ross was still without a challenger for the welterweight championship today after two leading contenders in the 147-pound division battled to a 15-round draw last night.

Izzy Janazzo Rose from the canvas where he had been knocked by Ceferino Garcia, swarthy little Filipino, in the eighth round and came back to earn a draw. The winner had been promised a shot at Ross.

Both fighters finished strong and brought the small crowd of 5,400 spectators in Madison Square Garden to its feet with a whirlwind 15th round. Garcia was cut. Janazzo weighed 145½; Garcia, 145½.

MORE CHILDREN FOUND TO HAVE DECAYED TEETH

DALLAS (UP) — Bad teeth are breaking the health and future possibilities of an amazing large percentage of American children, Dr. Ernest A. Branch, Raleigh, N. C., told the joint convention of the Texas and Oklahoma State Dental Societies here.

Maladies most frequently produced children from neglect of decayed teeth, he said, are tuberculosis and ailments of the kidneys and heart.

"Being dark, soft and warm, the mouth is a perfect incubator for germs and bad teeth provide the perfect culture media within it," said Dr. Branch, who is oral hygiene director of the North Carolina state board of health.

Tuberculosis germs breed rapidly in a mouth full of bad teeth, he said, and then are carried into the lungs.

Diet, hygiene and prenatal care all are involved in building good teeth, Dr. Branch said.

The fondness of Americans for sweets and soft foods was blamed by Dr. Branch for the current increase in tooth decay.

Roy J. Gillen

His name will appear on the separate Judicial Ballot as a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals. Not one of his decisions has been reversed during the four years he has been Common Pleas Judge of Jackson County. He served four terms in the Ohio Senate. His record merits support and your vote will be very much appreciated.

GOLF DENOTES PLUS FOURS TO RUSSIAN YOUTH

MOSCOW (UP) — Golf to the well-dressed Russian, is the name of a style of clothing—baggy plus fours. It is the ambition of nearly every young man to own a pair, but he wears them to the theater or on the street, and not on the links.

The game itself, while becoming in other countries a proletarian as well as a rich man's sport, has failed to make headway in the Soviet Union.

American residents once sought to interest Soviet sportsmen in the game, drove a golf ball from a hill near Moscow to illustrate how it was done, but the idea failed to click.

Nearly every other sport except baseball arouses enthusiasm here, and all are encouraged by the government and Communist party as stimulants to physical culture and for the improvement of health, but the Russian still must take his walk without pursuing a ball.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A THOUGHTLESS BID

SOMETIMES proper procedure differs with the kind of game being played. For example: in rubber bridge it rarely pays to make a weak fourth hand overall, of a dealer's bid unable to go game; in duplicate bridge fourth hand may feel obliged to take a slight risk to prevent dealer from easily fulfilling a part game contract, which may give him top score. With the South holding there was no excuse in overcalling West's 1-No Trump in a rubber game, at love score. As West was a very sound bidder, while both North and East were free bidders, South should have calculated that West held nearly all missing strength and that it would not pay to bid 2-Spades, even in a duplicate game.

Bidding went: West, 1-No Trump, second hand; South, 2-Spades; West, 2-No Trumps; East, 2-No Trumps.

Of course the opening lead was the 7 of spades. Dummy played low. Declarer's K killed South's 9. There was no doubt that South held the Ace of clubs. Quite likely he held also the Q. The return lead was the 2 of clubs. North played low. Dummy's 10 forced South's Q. The 8 of hearts was returned. Declarer's K won the trick. North put up the 7, an encouraging card. Then declarer led his Ace of hearts. North played the 2 and South the 6, almost certainly showing that South held no more of the suit.

The 9 of clubs was led. When North played low, so did dummy. South's Ace took the trick. Now South showed the real distribution of his hand, by leading back his fourth-best diamond. Declarer's 9 lost to North's Q, and that played-er's last spade was led. Dummy played low. South played his 10, to make matters harder for declarer. The latter's J won the trick, leaving him a diamond tenace over South.

Dummy was put in lead with its Q of hearts. The 2 of diamonds was led from dummy, through South's K-6, up to West's A-7. I do not think that South knew just what declarer had, but that did not matter. Declarer won the eleventh and twelfth tricks with his diamond tenace. Then he had to give South the fourth defensive trick, by leading a spade.

He said about 30 per cent of the people fail to vote this ticket. He urged them to put their X under the rooster, vote for Stephen and Myers for judges of the supreme court, put Jones in the court of appeals and vote for Probate Judge Charles C. Young. Major Pealer reviewed the Davey administration briefly showing the improvements made in the payment of compensation to workmen, increase in old-age pensions, his fight to remove the sales tax on food, and drivers' license and responsibility laws.

"A Columbus newspaper gave a wonderful approval of Ohio's old-age pension today," Mr. Pealer said, "in an editorial hitting the security act."

Poor Record or Good One
"I cannot believe the people will promote one governor with a poor record and retire one with a fine record." Looking at a large picture of President Roosevelt on the platform the speaker said, "You may not be a perfect president but until a perfect president comes along we'll string along with you."

The great strides President Roosevelt has made in returning prosperity to this country were outlined by Mrs. Fletcher. "The New Deal government gave the first practical aid ever extended to farmers," she said. "That the New Deal has vigorously attacked the farm problem and has greatly improved farm prices, must be conceded by even the most bitter critics."

"Under the Tennessee Valley Authority electricity has been sold to communities served by TVA at less than one-half the national average charged by private companies. Farm homes were left in the dark by private utilities because of the high cost of extending rural power. Eight out of nine of the six million farmers in the United States have no electricity. Three-fourths of the American farm women carry water into their homes. Roosevelt created the rural electrification act which has brought new comfort to farm families, a rise in rural real estate, new markets for electrical goods."

"The new Social Security law means more protection from destitute old age, from starved and neglected childhood, from loss of work with no savings, from leading a hand-to-mouth existence in worry and want. The depression has taught us the enormous waste of unpreparedness, and that social insurance stabilizes business."

Read Financial Pages
She urged voters to read the financial pages of the newspapers to see the great benefits Roosevelt has brought to this country.

"The president is enabling the nation to balance its budget so he can balance the nation's budget," she continued. "The first step to reduce national debt is to lighten personal debt. The acid test as we go to the polls is to compare the net results and benefits to the average man under the Old Deal and the New Deal, and ask ourselves under which regime will the average man fare better."

Mr. Goeller asked voters to approve the bond issue for the sewage disposal plant and see that their neighbors went to the polls next Tuesday.

chance of winning. Few but wishful thinking partisans believe Lemke can do more in this campaign than pare down the aggregate of Roosevelt votes in many states where the Coughlin-Lemke alliance with Townsend Old Age Pensioners represents an otherwise impotent minority.

Known by Midnight
Polls will open early Tuesday morning. Unless this election is quite close the winner will be identified by midnight and by Wednesday morning the nation should know by what degree the Republican drive has reduced the current Democratic majority of more than 200 in the House of Representatives.

Political confusion is demonstrated by the fact that President Roosevelt not only is supported by the Democratic party but, in various states, by organized Progressives, Farmer-Laborites and the American Labor party. Opposed to him and whooping it up for Gov. Landon are the American Liberty League, composed of both Republicans and Democrats, the National Jeffersonian Democrats, and a sprinkling of unorganized bolters from the party of which the president is the head.

Left wing supporters of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket apparently believe the post-civil war party structure will be in collapse four years hence. Each in his own way is maneuvering to take over the liberal political machine Mr. Roosevelt created under the New Deal label. That is notably true of the LaFollette's Progressive party in Wisconsin, of the American Labor party and of the purportedly Non-Partisan Labor League in which John L. Lewis, most energetic of American labor leaders, is a foremost figure.

Swinging through the populous eastern mid-Atlantic states this week, Mr. Roosevelt challenged the G. O. P. on its charge that the New Deal Social Security program of old age pensions was a disguised tax on the worker's wage. Republicans have been making progress in industrial states in the last 10 days with the argument that the one per cent of wages which the government will begin collecting next January may not return to the workers commensurate old age protection. The Democratic counter-attack emphasizes the dollar-for-dollar contributions of employers to the old age fund and the additional levy on employers for unemployment relief benefits which are part of the Social Security program. Mr. Roosevelt hit hard at his favorite target, "Economic Royalists," in his swing through New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, home of the duPont family which has financed some of the more spectacular anti-Roosevelt campaigning of the past two years.

Why Double Liability On Bank Stock Should Go!

Because

More than 99 per cent of all accounts in Ohio's state banks are fully covered by deposit insurance up to $5000. on each account, Deposit insurance is paid for by the banks themselves.

Twenty-two other states have eliminated double liability.

It would cause banks to give depositors greater protection through more paid in capital.

You Cannot Sell bank stock unless double liability is removed.

Banks wish to increase their capital so they can better serve the credit needs of their communities so business need not go elsewhere.

Double liability has means less than 5 cents on the dollar to depositors.

Vote "YES" and get as many others as possible to vote "YES" on the double liability amendment known as Article XIII Section 3.

VOTE YES NOV. 3, 1936.
